Università Bocconi, founded in 1902, is an independent institution, committed to be a point of reference in the study of economics, management, law and quantitative disciplines. Bocconi has always adhered to the ideas and principles of its founder, businessman Ferdinando Bocconi: the spirit of innovation, attention to the real world, intellectual freedom and research, in a national and international environment.

Bocconi is located in the centre of Milan, Italy’s commercial, financial and fashion capital. Classes present up-to-date quality content and interactive methods supported by excellent IT and library facilities. The campus, located next to a public park, features several new buildings, including expanded classroom and dormitory space. Bocconi students have the use of dedicated sports facilities and can enjoy numerous cultural, artistic and musical events sponsored by the University. The presence of hundreds of international students and a distinguished international faculty helps create a lively exchange of experiences and ideas that contributes to the personal growth and marketability of all Bocconi graduates, who are also supported by a strong Career Service.
